Saved by Engineer's Quick Wit. Engineer Bowitch of the way train from Cohasset, Mass., saved the lives of two boys, aged seven and eight years, by his quickness the other day, says a dispatch from Hingham, Mass., to the New York Evening Journal. They stepped out of the way of his train to the other track, along which an express was coming. Bowitch saw their peril, set his brakes hard, leaped off and dragged the little ones between the tracks just as the express rushed by at fifty miles an hour.
